

THE HEART of better care for pets and their people

DID YOU KNOW?

All veterinary hospitals are not created equal.

Accreditation is required for human hospitals but voluntary for animal hospitals.

Only about 15% of animal hospitals in the U.S. and Canada are accredited by AAHA, and we're proud to say that we're one of them!

The AAHA Difference

To become accredited by AAHA, an experienced accreditation consultant visits our hospital to evaluate us on more than 900 standards that directly correlate to the quality of care we are providing your pet. AAHA has determined that our practice demonstrates an exceptional level of medical care and client service, and we strive to deliver nothing less than excellence.

“After I learned about AAHA accreditation, I found an accredited hospital in my area. I was blown away by the service we received there. I cannot tell you how impressed I am with our new veterinary hospital. Thanks to learning about accreditation, I now have the most wonderful veterinarian for my dog.”

—MELISSA CLINTON, PET OWNER

The American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA) is the only organization that accredits companion animal veterinary practices in North America.

We strive to deliver excellent care

Thank you for trusting us with the care of your pets.

The AAHA Standards of Accreditation cover these and so much more:

We are trained to handle your pet gently and safely, which minimizes stress during the veterinary visit.

We consider pain assessment and control a valuable part of your pet's visit, which helps promote faster healing and comfort.

A practice team member will be dedicated to monitoring your pet while he or she is under anesthesia.

We provide nutritional assessments and counseling to help you make informed decisions about your pet's diet.

Your pet's dental procedures are performed by trained team members who follow the highest standards of dental care.
